

Brothers and Sisters at the Chamber, “It is important to remind yourself that this is not a race. Do what you can do today. You will get to where you are going. Progress happens in layers” – Audrey Kitching The current pandemic situation has taught us the value of being patient, of waiting, of not trying to control each aspect of our own (and others’) lives. We have maybe painfully learnt in the past one year, that progress does happen in layers. Not all of us could get vaccinated at the same time. Not all of us tested positive, on the flip side. As I write this communication, news has come out that we will see further unlocking and we are hopeful that in the days to come, we progress steadily towards normalcy, days where we can freely meet with one another rather than look at each other through a computer (or mobile phone) screen. The world of global tax policy has also been impacted by the prese.....
